Nixon Strikes Hard At Soviet Foreign Policy

U.S. Governors Gather In Puerto Rico For Parley

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — United States governors winged in Saturday from over the country for their annual conference — a session likely to go into the books as the Nelson Rockefeller conference.

Seldom has one of these affairs, never billed as political but always tinged with politics, revolved so dominantly around a single political figure.

Bouncy and smiling, Rockefeller landed at San Juan's palm-fringed airport late Saturday. He had a wave for a hundred or so onlookers but not a word on politics for a throng of newsmen.

Asked if he had any special program to follow here, the governor replied: "The pleasure of being in Puerto Rico and meeting all the Governors."

Two other Republican governors, Robert T. Stafford of Vermont and Cecil H. Underwood of West Virginia, were on the commercial flight with Rockefeller. They conceded there might have been a bit of political talk during the flight but gave no details.

Rockefeller may open up a bit Sunday. At least he will have an opportunity at an afternoon news conference.

The New York governor, so far the only man in sight who could give Vice President Richard M. Nixon a tussle for the Republican presidential nomination next year, has key spots on both the business and social programs of the conference.

This 51st Governors' Conference, which gets into a few preliminaries Sunday and into formal session Monday, is unusual in other respects, too.

For the first time, the governors are assembling outside the continental United States in an island commonwealth which rapidly is developing into a showplace of the Caribbean.

For the first time, also, there would be more than 48 governors present. But all will not be here. Alaska could be represented by its first elected governor, William A. Egan. But Egan is trying to settle a carpenters' strike and cannot be here. The new governor-elect of Hawaii, William F. Quinn, will be on hand, though.

A pair of controversial Southerners, Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas and Earl K. Long of Louisiana, never replied to official invitations.

MARGARINE WIDENS PRICE ADVANTAGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Margarine has widened its price advantage over its competitor, butter.

The Agricultural Marketing Service said Saturday that consumption of margarine this year again will exceed that of butter. It said the rise in use of margarine in recent years has been due partly to the wide price difference between the two.

This summer the price of butter is running a little above a year earlier while the price of margarine is nearly 2 cents a pound or 6 per cent lower.

Red Radio Accuses Nixon Of Distorting Soviet Foreign Policy

LONDON (AP) — Radio Moscow Saturday night accused Vice President Richard M. Nixon of distorting Soviet foreign policy in his radio and television address to the Soviet people.

In the first public Soviet comment on Nixon's unprecedented TV appearance in Moscow Saturday, a Soviet broadcast said:

"In his speech, there were many good words and interesting ideas. A valuable point was his understanding of the might and strength of our country."

But Soviet commentator Yakov Viktorov charged Nixon dodged the question of American bases encircling the Soviet Union.

In his address Nixon said the bases were for defensive not aggressive purposes and would be removed whenever the United States no longer felt threatened.

"Does Mr. Nixon really think that the Soviet people are so naive as to believe that the American military bases, which are placed thousands of kilometers from the U.S.A. and very close to the Soviet Union's frontiers, are intended to defend America's frontiers — on whom no one ever has made or will make attacks?" Viktorov asked.

"To be still more convincing, Nixon even tries to delve into the past, distorting Soviet foreign policy and the history of its development."

"But what did history say, now that Nixon has been able to convince himself of the love of peace of the Soviet Union?"

"How is one then to explain the establishment of American atom and rocket installations in other countries at a minimum distance from the Soviet Union?"

"He has no answer to that question nor could he have."

Viktorov's comments came in a Swedish-language broadcast from Moscow. There was no indication whether his remarks had been put out to Soviet listeners.

Two and a half hours after Nixon's address Radio Moscow's domestic news bulletin had nothing to say about Nixon's TV appearance.

Police at first believed the women were victims of the fire, but an examination disclosed slugs from a small caliber pistol in their heads.

Neighbors told of hearing shots and a door slam between 2:30 and 3 a.m. Friday.

Police said 22 cartridges from a .25 caliber pistol were found in a dresser drawer, but the weapon was not found.

'When Time Is Right' Nikita Says He'd Like To Fly To U.S. In Jet

MOSCOW (AP) — Jovial and joking, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev inspected two American jet airliners Saturday and toasted U.S. leaders. Asked if he would like to fly to the United States in one of the planes, the Premier replied: "This one or some other one."

Questioned further by a reporter as to when he would like to make a U.S. visit he replied: "When the time is ripe — in good time. There has been much speculation that Vice President Richard M. Nixon may suggest a Khrushchev visit to President Eisenhower in a report on his Soviet tour."

Head On Kills 5, Injures 5 In West Virginia

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP) — Two cars—one on the wrong side of the road—crashed head on on the West Virginia Turnpike early Saturday. Five persons were killed and five were injured.

In the northbound car were six soldiers on weekend passes from Ft. Bragg, N.C. Two of them were killed. Only one of the four persons in the other car was alive, and her condition was reported poor.

Wreckage from the force of the impact was scattered for some distance up and down the two-lane toll road which cuts through southern West Virginia's mountains from Princeton to Charleston.

"One car was on the wrong side of the road," said state police Lt. R. G. Cowan, "but the two cars were so demolished that it was impossible to tell which was."

The soldiers were driving north. Recruit Calvin McLaughlin, 17, of Altoona, Ala., and Pvt. James W. Jenkins, 19, of Huntington, W. Va., were killed.

Their four companions were brought to Veterans Hospital here. They are Pvt. Ralph L. Walker, 18, of St. Albans, W. Va., with a fractured skull; Pvt. Phillip J. Sullivan, 23, Portsmouth, Va., fractured skull; Pfc. Michael R. Provost, 26, Portland, Maine, head injuries and broken right leg; and Specialist I.C. Fred Teron, 21, Chicago.

Killed in the southbound car bound for Bluefield, W. Va., were Charles Oscar Shinnault, 58, the driver; Charles Fremont Shinnault, 26, his son, and Mrs. Okey Adkins, 29, all of Troy, Ohio. Mrs. Elsie Shinnault, 50, wife of the driver, was hospitalized with a broken left arm, right leg and crushed chest.

CAT'S MEOW PUTS MAN IN HOSPITAL — ST. JOHN, Kan. (AP) — The cat's meow put Joseph Gilbert Lewis in a hospital.

The Wichita man got out of his car in the darkness Friday morning to stretch his legs. Through the open door a cat hopped into the car, without Lewis seeing it.

As Lewis drove on the cat leaped onto the back of the driver's seat, rubbed its whiskers against Lewis and let out a loud meow.

State Trooper Tony Bendel reported the startled Lewis lost control of the car. It rolled into a field and was badly damaged. Lewis was hospitalized in St. John for cuts, bruises and shock.

Blasts Attempt To Communize World

MOSCOW (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon told the Soviet people Saturday night they will "continue to live in an era of fear, suspicion and tension" if Premier Nikita Khrushchev uses their labors to try to communize the world.

In a TV-radio address believed tuned in by millions of Soviet citizens, the Vice President struck hard at Soviet foreign policy while calling for greater U.S.-Soviet understanding in the interest of peace.

Nixon declared bluntly that U.S. military bases will continue to encircle the Soviet Union "until the fear and suspicion that caused us and our Allies to take measures for collective self-defense will be removed." Thus he answered the question most often raised by hecklers on his 5,000-mile tour of the Soviet Union.

The Vice President disclosed for the first time that Khrushchev, in their recent secret talks, had repeated his boast that American great-grandchildren would live under communism. Nixon fired back his answer in his address to the Soviet people.

"Let me say that we do not object to his saying this will happen," he declared. "We only object if he tries to bring it about. And this is my answer to him. I do not say that your grandchildren will live under capitalism."

"The very essence of our belief is that we do not and will not try to impose our system on anybody else. We believe that you and all other people on this earth should have the right to choose the kind of economic or political system which best fits your particular problems..."

The vice president took strong exception to the slogan "Let us work for the victory of communism" which he saw frequently on his tour.

"If Mr. Khrushchev means by this slogan working for a better life for the people within the Soviet Union, that is one thing," Nixon said. "If, on the other hand, he means the victory of communism over the United States and other countries, this is a horse of a different color. For..."

Builders Strike In South Illinois Appears Imminent

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A strike that could paralyze all major construction projects in 19 southern Illinois counties appeared likely Saturday. Full effect of a work stoppage—if there is one—would not be felt until Monday.

Involved are laborers, from workers and cement finishers unions and the Southern Illinois Builders Assn., a group of contractors.

No estimate was available on the number of workers represented in negotiations for new contracts. But during an eight-week strike in 1957, 56,000 workers were idled. Some were members of allied crafts which refused to cross picket lines.

Leonard Schermer of St. Louis, Mo., attorney for the SIBA, said there was no danger of a strike by Cement Finishers Local 90 of East St. Louis.

Members of Ironworkers Local 392 rejected a contract proposal Saturday.

No negotiations were held with Laborers Local 100 of East St. Louis and 397 of Granite City, whose contract expired at mid-night Friday.

The SIBA is negotiating for new contracts with the Southwestern Illinois Laborers District Council of Edwardsville and the Southern Illinois Laborers District Council of Carbondale.

Harold Gruenberg, attorney for locals 100 and 379, said a strike seemed likely unless the contractors agree to an extension of the present contract. He said the two locals are not seeking wage increases, merely an extension of the present pact.

Rumor Of Nikita, Ike Talks Overshadows Big Four Conference

GENEVA (AP) — Official American soundings Saturday night reinforced the conviction of Western statesmen here that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev soon will be invited to visit the United States.

Authoritative information indicated Britain, France and West Germany already have endorsed the idea of a Khrushchev visit as the result of American proings for their reactions.

But there were undertones of uneasiness over a meeting between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev on two counts:

1. The Soviet Premier might try to turn the occasion into a propaganda picnic.

2. There were lingering suspicions that the interests of the European Allies might suffer in any negotiation—or even discussion—between leaders of the two giant nations.

These doubts appear to have been implied rather than stated by the governments concerned.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is known to have revived his old demand for an early Western summit meeting before any Khrushchev visit.

France is believed to favor talks at the top levels if held in Paris. This meeting could include some or all of the 15 member-nations of the Atlantic Alliance.

Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan seems to have told Washington that any Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting must be the forerunner of the long-projected East-West summit conference.

Soviet officials in Geneva were unwilling to discuss the prospects of a Khrushchev visit.

"We know nothing about it," one Soviet spokesman said.

These back stage moves tended to overshadow efforts of the Big Four foreign ministers here to put the Berlin crisis on ice.

It is assumed, even if the foreign ministers' nine-week talks are continued, that they will be held in Berlin.

Botulism In Beets Kills Two, Two Others Are Critically Ill

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — The beets had an odd taste, a funny smell. Within three days, two people who had eaten them were dead. Two others lay near death, iron lungs pumping the breaths their ravaged bodies could no longer draw.

The four — and two others less gravely affected — were victims of botulism. It's a little-known food poison produced by a germ that is harmless in the open air but deadly when shut away from oxygen. The poison is most often found in home-canned foods which haven't been processed well enough. Foods low in acid are the most likely hosts to the germ, with beans topping the list. Others are corn, beets, spinach, and chard vegetables such as asparagus or artichokes. Meat products have sometimes produced botulism.

Usually, boiling the food for five minutes is all that is needed to kill the germs and prevent botulism.

The germs secrete their poison only when shut away from oxygen, as they would be in a jar of preserved food. They live in the soil and appear to be harmless as long as they stay there. Scientists say fresh fruits and vegetables may be eaten safely even though they carry dust loaded with the germs.

Doctors say the damage can't be corrected once it's done—even if the patient lives.

The poison has killed two persons here — Farmer Aaron Cruwell, 74, Idaho Falls and Wanda Nelson, 15, of Kansas City, Mo. The four survivors are hospitalized. Two of them are in iron lungs: Kenneth Nelson, 45, Wanda's father, and his wife Naomi, 41. Gruwell's wife, Lavelle, and another Nelson child, Martha, 4, are also hospitalized.

Mrs. Gruwell is Nelson's mother. The Nelsons came here to visit at the Gruwell farm last Monday. The family ate the beets the next day. Gruwell died Thursday, Wanda Friday night.

Gov. Rockefeller Gives Okay To Possibility His Son May Marry Former Housemaid

NEW YORK (AP) — Multimillionaire Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller gave hearty approval Saturday to the possibility his son, Steven, may marry a blonde Norwegian beauty who once was the family's housemaid.

The Republican presidential possibility said he and his wife would look with favor on such a wedding and indicated they would go to Norway to attend the ceremony if it were held there.

Steven, 23, sped to Norway immediately upon being discharged from the Army recently. He has been vacationing with the girl, Anne Marie Rasmussen, 21, daughter of a grocer.

But amid constantly mounting reports of romance, the young Princeton graduate and the girl have declined to say whether they intend to marry.

In Kristiansand, Norway, the girl's pastor, the Rev. Olaf Gautestad, said he might have something to say Monday, but he did not indicate what that would be.

Gov. Rockefeller, before leaving Idlewild Airport for the annual Governors' Conference in Puerto Rico, told newsmen he and his wife certainly would favor the marriage. If the young couple decide to wed, he also was asked not to participate in the wedding of any of his children," said the governor, father of five.

Electronic Banking Opens Modern Era At Farmers State Bank

Modern Electronics has ushered in a new era at the Farmers State Bank and Trust Company. An electronic accounting machine designed by the National Cash Register Company is the key to a new simplified bookkeeping process called "Post-Tronics."

The Post-Tronic accounting machine is to banking what the automatic transmission was to the auto industry. From the time when banks were first organized, and bookkeepers with dark green light shields mounted the high stools from dawn to dark, business has been recorded "as usual." Every deposit, check and transaction affecting every customer's account must be recorded in detail, just as it has always been done.

Fast and Accurate

The modern method is to click a few keys and push a button. The Post-Tronic accounting machine is so accurate that it is almost impossible to make a mistake or record a check on the wrong account. If the operator tries to post a check to the wrong account, the machine flashes a red light and spits the ledger sheet out without recording anything. This also works for deposits too. Each depositor has a code number which is the key to the success of the entire operation. The new system will provide for double the number of accounts processed in the same amount of time using the same personnel. All this with the most accurate methods known to modern banking.

Customers Given Checks

Customers have been given new personalized checks, without charge, with individual code numbers imprinted.

Each machine costs more than $12,000 but bank officials feel the economies of operation and customer satisfaction will more than repay the cost. The first two such machines have been installed at Farmers Bank.

The working parts of the machine resemble an expensive hi-fi set and is designed to operate with a minimum of components. Each electronic component is interchangeable.

The new machines will produce the bank's and the customer's reords with an unprecedented degree of accuracy and speed. Actually, customers will not have to learn anything new. Accounting forms posted by the machines are identical in appearance with those printed by conventional machines, except for ten strips of iron oxide on the reverse side. This iron oxide material provides a medium for magnetic data processing of each customer's account.

Automatic Operation

The Post-Tronic is equipped with an electronic reading and recording mechanism that automatically stores a depositor's checking-account balance on conventional-type monthly statements in the form of invisible magnetic symbols. As a result, an operator cannot make an incorrect pickup of a depositor's balance, eliminating a frequent source of error.

The machine also verifies electronically that the proper check is charged against the proper account. It automatically aligns the bookkeeping form to the next proper posting line. Should an account at any moment become overdrawn, the machine notifies the operator immediately. If the operator should commit any one of several possible errors in preparing a statement, the machine becomes inoperative until proper corrective steps have been taken.

Bank officials pointed out that in handling the thousands of transactions that take place every day, accuracy is always the primary consideration. All systems are designed to check and double-check every record made of a transaction. Electronics just simplifies the task.

Nudists Hold Convention At 'Bald Hill' Camp

YELM, Wash. (AP)—A pretty young housewife clad only in her own skin said Friday she "never realized how much people were alike until I became a nudist."

She is one of 700 to 800 badge-wearing delegates at the 28th annual convention of the American Sunbathing Assn. They are meeting at a 104-acre wooded camp in an area aptly named the "Bald Hills."

A reporter who interviewed several nudists, including the housewife, he didn't catch her name—confirmed the wearing of badges. These aren't pinned; they dangle from a chain around the neck.

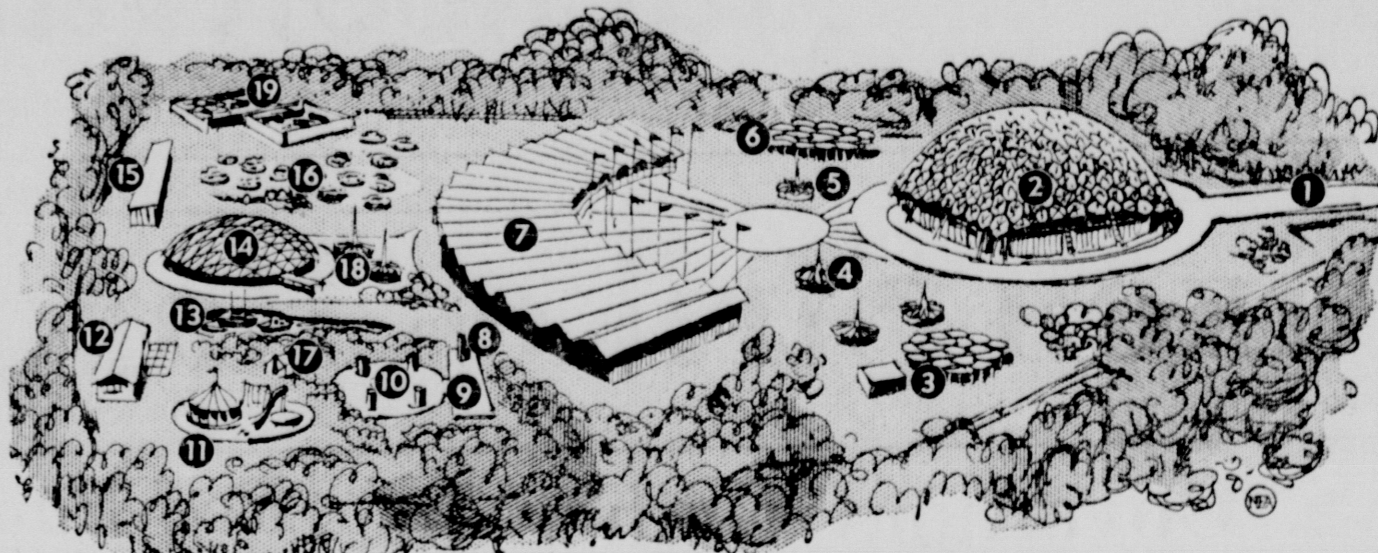

Association President William J. Le Cates of Tampa, Fla., said about 40,000 persons practice social nudism in this country. His organization claims 15,000 members.

Nudism is a philosophy, not a religion, he said. "We do not worship the sun." During the day the delegates attend meetings, play games and swim in a pool from which bathing suits are banned. Along toward evening, however, the weather begins to cool and the mosquitoes swarm in humming "Jackpot! Jackpot!" and the delegates put on their clothes.

Le Cates said nudists in camp normally use only their first names to protect themselves from criticism and ridicule by outsiders. "We're not fanatics, either," chimed in an elderly man named Bob. Dreams of the delights of the old swimmin' hole of his boyhood prompted him to become a nudist, Bob said.

Le Cates said doctors, lawyers, teachers, nurses, clergymen and Despite a shortage of money, cement floors which crumbled and filled the air with dust, sharp criticism in the Soviet press and other stumbling blocks, the American exhibit in Moscow is a popular success. This can be laid to a hunger for knowledge of things American which pervades the Russian populace. • Diagram, above, shows the layout of the fair in the heart of the 1,500-acre Sokolniki Park. The huge, golden geodesic dome—which the Russians will purchase together with

Zimmermans Of Chautauqua To Return To Africa

JERSEYVILLE — Rev. and Mrs. Daniel Zimmerman and five children, Daniel, John, Martha, David and Miriam, of Chautauqua, Ill., will sail Aug. 4 from New York to continue their missionary work among the Songhai people along the Niger river in the French Sudan.

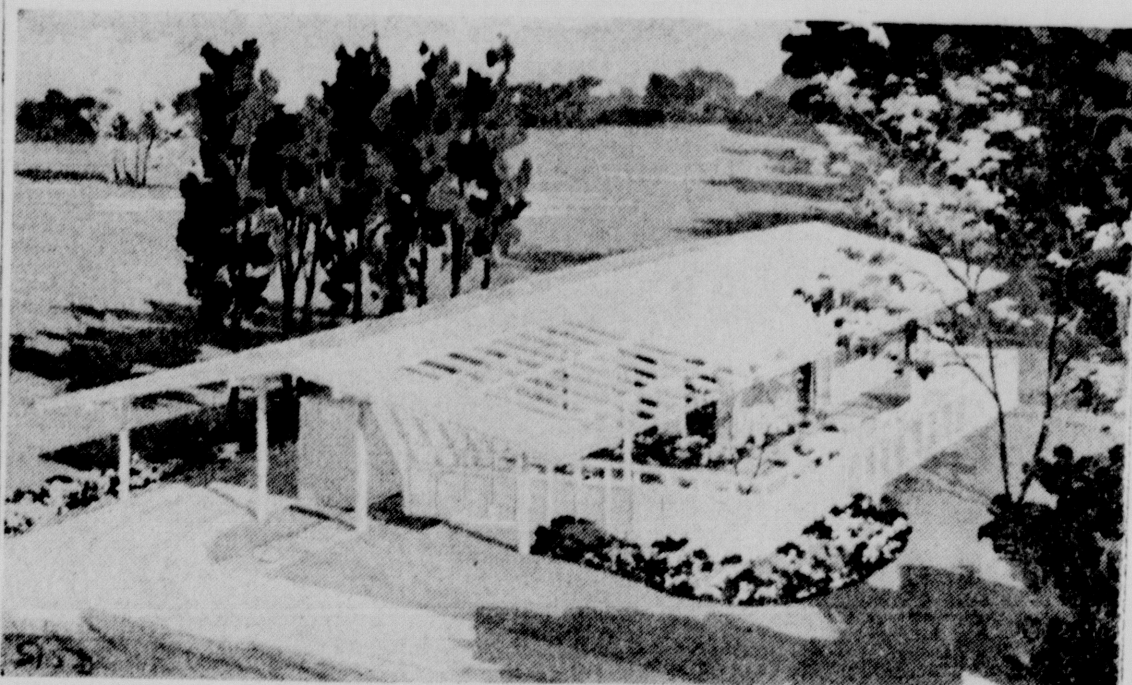

They will sail on the "African Sun" to Dakar and will then travel by train about 800 miles to Bamako in the Sudan. The remainder of the trip will be down the Niger river on a river boat. This will be the couple's third stay in Africa in the mission field. They first entered the foreign mission field in November, 1949 and spent their first year in Algeria and the remainder of the time in French West Africa. The family returned to the States and spent part of 1953 and 1954 here before returning to the field where they remained for 3 1/2 years. They came home in May, 1959 and have been residing at the home of Rev. Zimmerman's father, Edward Zimmerman of Chautauqua, while in the States.

Rev. and Mrs. Zimmerman are working with Evangelical Baptist Missions and have been located at Gao, an ancient city near Timbuktu. Four of their five children were born in Africa. When the family left they took with them clothing and supplies sufficient for a three year stay. The Missionary Society of the First Baptist church in Grafton, as a missionary project, prepared copies of Scripture portions and compiled a songbook in the Songhai language which Rev. Zimmerman had translated on the field.

Model Home Being Built Here

The Crawford Lumber Co., will participate in a nationwide "Showcase of Famous Brands" model home program in co-operation with Masonite Corporation. It was announced today by Lawrence and Bud Crawford of the building supply concern.

Aim of the program is to present the latest ideas in home building, improvements, furnishings, appliances, materials and services available to local home owners and builders. Last year, nearly 200 leading lumber dealers in all parts of the United States participated in a similar program sponsored also by the world's largest manufacturer of hardboard.

A "Showcase" model home, designed by noted architects Painter, Weeks and McCarthy of Knoxville, Tenn., around the exciting new "Pattern for Living" concept, will be erected and furnished by the lumber company in co-operation with other leading merchants in the community.

The "Pattern for Living" concept is architectural planning designed to keep pace with changes in a family's living patterns, the lumber dealer explained. Such changes, he said, include the growing family, the established family that needs additional facilities or luxuries, and the one desiring separated living quarters for a relative, guest or maid.

"This excellent idea permits the typical American family to enjoy living at its best today with assurance of continued living at its best during the years to come," the dealer commented.

The local "Showcase" home will be the Knoxville, a one-story ranch like the one built at Knoxville, Tenn., by the National Association of Home Builders Research Institute in co-operation with Masonite Corporation. This beautiful design incorporates features only dream of a few years ago.

Among them are floor-to-ceiling doors that improve the spacious appearance of the interior and improve the ventilation, heating and cooling; Masonite Panelok for interior walls and all closets to give not only a beautiful grained finish but the function of holding magazine racks, counter tops, desk tops, art objects and display and storage items.

This is an efficiently-arranged three-bedroom house with a two-way bathroom that has the tub located in the center, with other facilities situated on both sides.

A principal feature is the use of hardboard as a basic structural material. The component exterior walls have an attractive exterior surface with vertical ribs, a walnut-grained surface for the interior, and 2 inches of insulation between.

The limited use of ceramic tile in the bathroom and kitchen at points normally difficult to care for, make these two areas easy to maintain without excessive initial cost.

The corridor type Kitchen Maid kitchen will be a joy to any home maker; it includes a pass through to the family room and features a combination breakfast bar and study desk on the family room side.

To make the Knoxville a more comfortable and convenient home, Crawford Lumber is adding features not included in the original house.

Recognizing the importance of electricity in the modern home, the Knoxville will be wired to provide electrical conveniences for years to come. It is understood by Crawford that it will be awarded a coveted Bronze Medal by the electrical industry for its high standards. It will be the third award in the Jacksonville area.

The home will be completely air conditioned to assure the future occupants of year round comfort.

Separated outdoor storage, concealed from the street, is afforded by a tool house designed to fit into the overall design scheme. Interior walls are Peg Board lined. A carport is adjacent, protected by a roof overhang. A lowered roof lets in sunlight to the fence-enclosed patio.

Room sizes are: Living room, 14' 8" x 12' 2"; dining room, 11' x 13' 4"; bedrooms, 11' 3" x 13' 3", 11' 3" x 10' 4" and 9' 6" x 10'.

Winston Douglas, competent contractor, is the builder. Because of its many features, Crawford said, the Knoxville is expected to attract hundreds of visitors when it is opened for public inspection in September. It is located in Westgate Addition at the corner of Peoria Road and Massey Lane. Construction has already started.

By Ralph Waldo Emerson's Definition Innkeeper Jim Hatcher Was Great Man

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Friends knew Uncle Jim Hatcher as a crusty innkeeper with a big heart and a cracker barrel philosophy. But by the definition of a poet, he was a great man.

"A great man" wrote Ralph Waldo Emerson — as Uncle Jim probably could have told you — "quotes bravely, and will not draw on his invention when his memory serves him with a word as good."

There never was a braver quoter, outside politics or the pulpit, than James Hatcher. He filled the lobby walls of the James Hatcher Hotel with quotes.

Above the entrance to the room, which happens to be campaign headquarters of the Democratic party, is this quotation credited to Monty Hale, Hollywood, Calif.: "Always tell the truth and you will never have to remember what you said."

In a prominent place is an original Hatcher: "All towels, linens, bedding and fixtures in this hotel is (sic) mine. I want no more mistakes made when packing to leave. This practice is no longer a joke with me, James Hatcher."

Uncle Jim is 20 years dead. But by the terms of his 37-page will and the obedience of his nephews, his quotations live on.

Jack and Joe Trimble, who operate the 16-room hotel, plan to redecorate the spacious, old-fashioned lobby this summer. They are going to paint the walls, but they have carefully photographed them so the quotations can be painted on again after the job is done.

Hatcher started in the '30s lecturing a little advice and some local history on the walls.

"People coming through would have a quotation they wanted on the wall," says Jack Trimble. "Uncle Jim would take it down and when a sign painter would come through — that was during the depression — he would give him a night's lodging for painting some signs."

Hatcher made his modest fortune in timber and coal. He opened the hotel in 1931, eight years before his death at the age of 80. He is buried on a hill above town, where his tragic love story is carved in Italian marble.

Dominating the burial plot is a graceful monument of Hatcher's wife, Octavia. "Died May 2, 1891, age 20 years, 11 months and 11 days."

THE SEARCH — Pretty buccanniers Cathy Sellers, left, and Anne Morse, treasure map in hand, study the terrain of Santa Rosa Island, off Pensacola, Fla. They're looking for buried treasure worth $15,000. Finder of the chest in the sand dunes overlooking the Gulf of Mexico wins a house. It's Pensacola's quadricentennial celebration.

Nash, Jack Todd, Kenneth Gregory and Supt. L. E. Starke.

The group voted to meet again in five years (1964), which will mark the 25th anniversary of graduation. The committee selected for that reunion was Mrs. Wendell, Mrs. Elizabeth Tankersley, Mrs. Clifford Wyatt, Bruce Liming, Mrs. Jo-Ann Lyman Price, Mrs. Vivian Swarrington Bolrum, Mrs. Phyllis DeShazer Branson and Miss Frances Steckel.

Heat or energy content of about 6,000 cubic feet of natural gas is equal to that of one barrel of oil.

IT'S NO BOAT
NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—A submarine is a ship and not a boat and furthermore it is a first line ship of the Navy, says Rear Adm. Frederick B. Warder, Commander Submarine Force, Atlantic.

He has requested officers and crew to refer to them as submarines or ships, reviving the old Navy adage: It's a boat if it can be carried by a ship.

Early submarines were small craft originally called tarped boats, which could be hoisted to docks or aboard ships, and were a far cry from today's submarines.

Morgan County 4-H'ers Examine Health With U. Of I. Keep Fit Tests

Morgan County Keeping Fit Day was held Wednesday, July 22nd, at the David Prince Gym in Jacksonville. There were twenty-one 4-H members and twenty-one 4-H leaders and parents present.

Charles M. Tipton, who has had four years of experience in testing 4-H members in Illinois, headed the team of specialists from the University who helped conduct the event.

He graduated in Physical Education, has been employed in the rehabilitation laboratory at the University, and is now taking his doctor's degree in Physiology.

Ronald G. Knowlton was the second member of the team. He organized and instructed social leaders in administering the other tests. Knowlton is a graduate student in Physical Education, who has been employed in the fitness laboratory at the University of Illinois.

4-H Leaders, parents, and board members of the Morgan County HIA helped with giving the different tests and with calculating the scores.

One of the tests given during the Keeping Fit Day was the rotometer, which is a machine which records the pulse beat of the 4-H member after they have had one-half minute of exercise. Then the 4-H member's heart beat is recorded on tape and sent to the University. There was a test to determine how strong lungs a 4-H member has by telling him how many pounds lung pressure he has. The members were weighed and measured and with these measurements the body type was determined.

Another test of flexibility was the trunk forward test which shows the flexibility of the back. The second flexibility test was the trunk backwards which shows how high a 4-H member can raise his head up and back from the floor. The arm pull is a test on arm, shoulder, and back muscle strength, which is registered on a special machine. The broad jump is a test of leg strength.

The test for endurance and speed were not given since the activities had to be held inside.

The Keeping Fit Activity brings out the importance of the H, which stands for Health in 4-H. The Health H is just as important as the other 3 H's of 4-H Club work.

Local Woman Has Correct Answer On T-V Quiz

A keg of wine and a book of facts about Chicago and Illinois history added up Friday evening to a total of $200 for Mrs. Marvin Weber of 1426 Passavant Drive. Mrs. Weber became the proud recipient of $200 as she answered the question asked her by Hal Barton on his evening Kish Quiz program over Channel 7 TV.

Mrs. Weber offered the name of David Burnham, an architect who designed many Chicago buildings, as the name of the man who "each year sent a keg of wine twice around the world." Mrs. Weber said Burnham did this to age the wine before putting it in his cellar.

The lucky winner has had her name in the barrel of cards for nearly a month. The answer to the question was sent to her by a sister who lives in Chicago, who ran across it while reading "All-gold's America."

Mrs. Weber said Friday she "had lots of plans for using the money, but just couldn't decide on the definitely at the moment."

Alfalfa is also called lucerne.

Lawn Specialist Kiwanis Speaker

"You'll need to follow good seeding and maintenance practices if you wish to have a good lawn," Dr. C. E. Ackerman told Jacksonville Kiwanians at their regular meeting this week. Dr. Ackerman is a specialist in Floriculture at the University of Illinois.

"By following sound practices, the home owner can make two blades of grass grow instead of one," Dr. Ackerman stated.

Members were given suggestions of things to consider in establishing and maintaining a good lawn. If the turf looks green and healthy, you can be sure there's a good root system and well developed conditions for roots to grow in.

According to Dr. Ackerman the following factors should be considered:

Soil must have plenty of organic matter.

Soil must have the proper amounts of readily available plant foods. A well planned fertilization program aids greatly in avoiding a soil fertility problem.

Seed appropriate grasses. Get good seed. Large seeds, with a lot of bulk, may not give you nearly as much grass as a lesser amount of small seeds. In seeds, get quality rather than quantity.

Keep Cool In Summer

Keep soil temperature as low as possible in hot weather. Do this by higher clipping and by watering. The extent of root growth is proportional to the food manufacturing capacity of grass plants. Grasses with an upright growth habit, such as blue grass, cannot tolerate as close clipping as species that are low-growing, such as creeping bent.

Use chemicals to control weeds and undesirable grasses in your lawn.

U.S.D.A. Home and Garden Bulletin 51, entitled, "Better Lawns" is the best publication on lawn care. Dr. Ackerman advised. Copies may be obtained from the County Extension Office or from the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

New York Stock Market

By SHEP CAMPBELL
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market investors, their confidence unshaken, nevertheless became a bit more choosy this week.

Brisk bidding for shares again propelled the popular market averages to new heights. But the buying generally was selective, focusing on groups and individual issues.

Oils, chemicals, airplanes, steel, rails—all won flurries of favor. Some other groups, at the same time, suffered stiff losses.

The selective buying speeded up trading. All told, 15,069,648 shares changed hands during the week against 14,735,230 a week earlier.

On the week, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks stepped up 8.39 to an historic high of 235.10.

The Dow Jones industrial index, riding new highs each day, ran to 11.16 during the week to a record 674.88.

The market, thus, rolls into its traditionally strong month of August at the highest level in its history.

Brokers believe prices may trickle down briefly now. But, overall, they think the usual late summer upswing will carry stocks still higher.

Whopping first half corporate earnings reports, for one thing, continue to bolster investor sentiment, brokers note.

Of 1,419 issues traded this week, 682 advanced and 612 fell. New 1959 highs were set by 149 stocks and new lows by 49.

U.S. government and corporate bonds again failed to develop any definite trend this week.

As measured by The Associated Press average, industrial and utility bonds advanced for the week while rails declined.

Trading totaled $28,387,000 payable on the New York Stock Exchange compared with $26,619,500 the previous week and $27,283,600 in 1958.

CHICAGO (AP)—An improved wholesale pork market turned butcher hog prices upward this week for the first time in more than a month.

With a moderately active to active demand, prices were higher each day throughout the period and closed the week with barrows and gilts up 75 cents to $1.25 a hundredweight.

The supply of 35,000 head was the smallest in almost a year here, and for the 12 major markets it was among the smallest since last November.

The market for slaughter steers was steady to 50 cents higher but the average selling price of all grades was only a little above the $27.03 average of the previous week which was the lowest of the year.

The supply was 7 per cent larger than last week. The top price for the period was $30.00, equal to last week's high. It was the lowest peak since January.

Offerings of slaughter lambs increased both at Chicago and at the 12 major markets but spring lamb prices were steady to 50 cents higher. Yearlings were steady and ewes 50 cents lower.

RYE, WHEAT PUSH BEANS FROM HIGH TRADING POSITION

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—After holding the spotlight as the most bullish commodity on the Board of Trade for the past three weeks, soybean futures encountered more resistance this week and eased slightly.

Attention centered mainly on rye but wheat was coming back into its top-ranking position as the most heavily traded grain on the board.

The flurry in rye was linked with a recommendation by the tariff commission that imports of that grain be cut from 3,500,000 to 1,700,000 bushels even though traders say it already is in relatively short supply in the United States.

Some of the weakness in soybeans was linked with doubts that the acreage planted to that crop this year is as small as the Department of Agriculture showed in its July report.

Wheat, in a rut ever since the winter crop harvest began more than a month ago, finally showed some indications of working into a broader range. After two weeks of small gains it had climbed to within a cent or two of new highs for the season.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1/2 cent a bushel higher than a week ago. September $1.80 1/2, corn 1 1/2, lower, September $1.19 1/4, oats 1 1/4, cents higher, September new type contract 60 1/4, rye 34 1/4, higher, September $1.33 1/4, soybeans 1/4 lower, September $2.19.

the time when all military planes are converted to civilian use," the ambassador said.

"Very good," Khrushchev said. "At one point, the Premier said he would let his American hosts in on a little secret. Only Saturday he had seen a demonstration of a new Soviet military plane for carrying weapons and troops that could land on a dirt airstrip."

The Premier gave no details except to say it was faster than the IL18—a four-engine turboprop with a cruising speed of 405 miles an hour used to carry freight and passengers inside the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev said the plane "can be used for landing paratroops" and can carry a self-propelled gun and a light tank.

Later the Premier joked about the visit Nixon will make to Poland this week on his way home from the Soviet Union. Khrushchev noted the Nixon plane cannot make the flight nonstop from Moscow to the United States.

"I understand the reason Mr. Nixon decided to make some stops on his way home was because he didn't want to show that his plane could not make the trip nonstop," he added. "There has even been talk that the vice president started to make some stops on the way in order to cover up his traces, so to speak."

With a roar of laughter, Khrushchev once suggested that the famed plane designer, Andrei N. Tupolev, who inspected the planes with him, see what ideas he could steal.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Bill Skowron would have laughed out loud had not his broken left wrist hurt.

Propped up in a chair in his room at Lenox Hill Hospital on New York's Fifth Avenue, Moose Skowron was reading a criticism of the Yankees' collapse in a news weekly. A writer unknown in baseball circles splatters Casey Stengel all over the place, leading the reader to believe that the venerable manager is cordially hated by the hired hands.

"There's one for the books," said Skowron, shaking his head in disbelief. "A guy wins nine pennants and seven world championships in 10 years and they take him apart because six players get hurt and as many more go into slumps."

"What's wrong with Stengel?" All I know is that he's helped a lot of young guys, including me. Just before I signed a New York contract at Comiskey Park in Chicago on Labor Day of 1950, Casey told me, 'You sign with the Yankees, Moose, and I'll have you up here in three years. I did and he did.'"

AFTER THE STRING of mishaps which has kept him from having the big year to which one with his baseball tools is so richly entitled, Skowron is beginning to wonder whether he is injury prone.

Skowron found baseball a vastly more dangerous game injury-wise than the much rougher game of football. He spent three falls as a halfback for Weber High in Chicago's robust Catholic League, did all the punting and some place-kicking as a Purdue sophomore right halfback in the T in the rugged Big Ten.

"Outside of a bruised thigh in high school and having teeth knocked out a couple of times I was never hurt in football," smiled Skowron. "And the Yankees warned me about being injured in football."

"But I lost no time getting hurt in baseball. The Yankees sent me to Puerto Rico in the winter of 1950-51, and the first thing I knew I was returning to Chicago with a badly twisted ankle."

"With Norfolk of the Piedmont League the next summer, I tore a groin muscle."

Skowron, 28, 5-11½, 197 and with the well-defined muscles of an Olympic weight-lifter, led the American Association in runs-batted-in and home runs, batting .341 for Kansas City in 1952, and felt that he was on his way. But the next season he fractured a bone in his ankle.

In 1955 with the Yankees, he was batting .451 in late May, when he tore a hamstring muscle high in the back of his leg. When he got back, it happened again as he slid into third base. "It felt like a rubber band — just ripping." In 1956, a pitched ball broke his thumb during a spring exhibition game. A pitched ball in batting practice broke his toe. He suffered a pulled muscle behind the kneecap.

The injury which seems recurrent was incurred again from the field. In September of 1957, Skowron sprained the lumbar region of his back removing an air conditioning unit from the window of his home. This occurred when Minnie Minoso of the White Sox pushed a bunt toward first base, and limited his World Series play to the first and last games. Last year, he tore a muscle under the left arm.

This year Skowron's back kicked up again when he slipped in the mud in spring training. In the Yankee-Dodger exhibition game for Roy Campanella in Los Angeles, he tore a muscle behind the right knee.

When Skowron got back, Ike Delock of the Red Sox hit him on the head with a pitched ball. In this game, he caught a line drive of Marty Keough's bat to retire the side, touched the bag and returned to the dugout with his back twisted again. This sent him to the Mayo Clinic and the wrist was fractured on the first play in which he got on the day he returned.

The visitor drew the big first baseman's attention to the fact that he was in Room 711 at the Lenox Hill Hospital.

"That could be the first lucky thing that has happened to me in baseball," said Bill Skowron.

Milwaukee Romps To 8-1 Win Over Cards

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves staged a five-run romp in the seventh inning to romp to an 8-1 victory over St. Louis Saturday behind the six-hit pitching of Juan Pizarro. It was Milwaukee's ninth victory in 10 games.

A three-run homer by Eddie Mathews, his 30th of the season, clinaxed the Braves' big seventh-inning rally. Pizarro, who had pitched the first four games, however, had held the Braves to five hits and three runs before he was lifted for a pinchhitter.

Pizarro, 22-year-old southpaw, chalked up his fourth straight victory against one defeat. Except for the fourth inning when the Cards scored a run on singles by Gino Cimoli, Alex Grammas and Joe Cunningham, he was in full command at all times. He struck out five and walked two.

Tent City Has Survived Many State Fairs

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Many visitors enjoy the Illinois State Fair each year, but the odds are better than six-to-two and even that those gleaning the most pleasure from their State Fair experience are the campers at the exposition's Tent City.

Originally a product of the old horse and buggy days when transportation was a problem and a 60-mile trip a two-day affair, Tent City has survived and affords a combined camping excursion and fair visit to more than 4,000 persons annually.

Located in a wooded area in the southwest section of the giant 366-acre fair site, bring-your-own tent families may rent suitable space for the nominal charge of a dollar a night. The area is plotted with allowance for fire lanes and other facilities and is well-lighted at night. Police protection is thrown in at no extra charge.

For those wishing to give this rugged life a fling without the expense of outfitting themselves with all the camp-out paraphernalia, a local tent company will be on hand to rent tents, cots and other equipment.

For further information on how to have fun at the fair, write Tent City, Illinois State Fairgrounds, Springfield. Fair dates this year are August 14 through 23.

Second All-Star Tilt Presents Some Curious Aspects For LA Fans

By CHARLES MAHER

Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Since the setting is Los Angeles, it figured there would be some odd angles to the second 1959 all-star baseball game, which comes off Monday at Memorial Coliseum.

But even for Los Angeles — where a man with two heads might not be considered eccentric unless he wore only one hat—that game presents some curious aspects.

It's unusual, of course, for a second all-star game to be played at all. Ordinarily, this is a once-a-year production. But that's hardly the most peculiar feature of this game.

For one thing, it's being played at 4 o'clock in the afternoon (7 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time). Up to now the British are the only people who have ever scheduled anything for 4 p.m. and the best excuse they can find is hoisting tea cups.

For another thing, the game has not overwhelmed the local population—although it's the first all-star game in West Coast history and many American League stars will be making their first appearance here.

In addition, many big city newspapers which normally send writers to the all-star game will not be represented.

But, whatever the odd angles—there's a sound reason for nearly every one of them—the game will count as part of the all-star series that began 26 years ago. And it should make a pile of money for the players' pension fund.

The American Leaguers, who lost the first 1959 all-star game 4-4 at Pittsburgh still lead in the series, 15 games to 11. But their manager, Casey Stengel of the Yankees, has had terrible luck running all-star teams. Casey has Ed Brown, leading the Blue of the 24-year line for the first score, Zeke Bratkowski, sparking the Orange unit, threw a 9-yard pass to Bill McCollin in the end zone for the other.

Veteran end Jim Dooley and Harlon Hill looked impressive in catching passes during the scoring drives.

Fullbacks Merrill Douglas and Rick Casares missed the scrimmage because of injuries.

But, for all their enthusiasm, the third league's founders realize that their infant will be major league classification only for the first few years. It is unlikely that a Continental League team will play in a World Series until 1963 or 1964.

Much money will have to be spent for players — naturally. Bonuses will be doled out to untied youngsters. This, in time, will alleviate their player problem.

More cash will change hands in the form of indemnity payments to owners of minor league clubs who will lose out when the Continental League moves in.

It then remains for the Continental League and the American and National leagues to work out an equitable solution to each of the major problems. The third league, for its part, appears to have acted intelligently so far. It has no plan to raid the majors of players as the outlaw Federal League did in 1914 and 1915.

Now, it's up to the majors to hit a "triple" for baseball. Three leagues in which all will be company and none crowded out.

Auto Salesman Fails Again With Lake Michigan

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Griffith, 31-year-old Chicago auto salesman and former life guard, failed Saturday in his fourth attempt to swim Lake Michigan.

"I'll never talk about crossing Lake Michigan again," Griffith gasped as he was pulled from the water. He was taken to Franklin Boulevard Hospital where his condition was diagnosed as "grave fatigue."

He had been in the water 23 hours. He left Michigan City, Ind., Friday and was 13 miles from his Chicago destination when he gave up. Jim Moran, his employer and sponsor of the swim said, Moran estimated Griffith had covered 31 miles when he quit. Griffith had begun swimming close to the Indiana shore but veered into deeper water when offshore currents hindered him. High waves eventually helped defeat him, Moran said. Moran's 30-foot cruiser had to be towed to shore after being damaged by the 12-foot waves.

In his three previous tries to swim the lake, Griffith had left Chicago with Michigan City as his goal. His most recent attempt was last month.

No swimmer ever has succeeded in crossing the lake.

Continental League Has Taken Its First Steps

By BEN OLAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's third major league can be compared with a child emerging from infancy.

The Continental League, as it has been christened, has taken its first steps. It has started to speak out, and now there will be many, many questions that will have to be answered.

The new "baby" is moving swiftly. It has lined up franchises in New York, Houston, Toronto, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Denver.

And probably will have three more before the summit conference with the seven-man major league committee on Aug. 18.

There is no way of knowing what will emerge from the big pow-wow. But, if there was some way of peering into the minds of both factions, this is what we were likely to find.

The Continental League founders are getting the players is the big thing and we can't do it without some help from the majors. If they cut their player limit from 25 to 23, we'll have two players right there. Then if we can acquire rights to draft some top minor leaguers, purchase contracts of National and American League players and have working agreements with the minors, the problem is solved.

The major league clubhouse? Why help them out? But what can we do? They've moved faster than we thought. Maybe we should have considered expansion more favorably. Now it's too late. If we don't pitch in, Congress is sure to go to bat for them and they have a great one-two punch in Washington — Kefauver and Celler.

There is no doubt that the Continental League has two strong points going for it. They are Congressional backing and public favor. Senator Kefauver's bill that would limit to 80 the number of players permitted to be under contract to big league teams is still pending. Rep. Celler said that Congress would be "duty bound" to help the third league if there was no other way. And Senator John Carroll of the Senate Anti-trust and Monopoly Committee has warned that a blockade against the new circuit by the present major league teams would force Congress to take action to "break it up."

But, for all their enthusiasm, the third league's founders realize that their infant will be major league classification only for the first few years. It is unlikely that a Continental League team will play in a World Series until 1963 or 1964.

Much money will have to be spent for players — naturally. Bonuses will be doled out to untied youngsters. This, in time, will alleviate their player problem.

Landis' Double Hands Senators 14th Straight Loss, Staley The Winner

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Landis' errant double scored two runs with one out in the ninth and gave first-place Chicago a 2-1 victory over Washington Saturday, stretching the Senators' losing streak to 14 games.

Held to one hit until the ninth, the Sox increased their American League leadership to two games over Cleveland in a thrilling finish.

The loss was hung on reliever Dick Hyde, who spelled starter Camillo Pascual in the eighth after Pascual had to quit because of an ailing elbow. Pascual held the Sox hitless until Billy Goodman's one-out double in the seventh.

With one out in the ninth, Norm Cash walked and reached third on Earl Torgerson's single.

Landis smashed a looping drive to center. The ball eluded center fielder Bob Allison, scoring Cash and Torgerson, who dashed all the way from first with the winning run.

Chicago's winner was Gerry Staley, who relieved starter Ray Moore at the start of the ninth. It was the fourth triumph in a row for the White Sox who have captured eight victories in their last nine decisions and now lead by their widest margin of the season. Several times they held a 1½ game edge.

Falling Bench Takes Its Toll On Early Wynn

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago White Sox pitcher Early Wynn suffered a severely sprained left Achilles tendon Saturday when a bench collapsed while a squad picture was being taken.

Wynn, the American League's winningest pitcher with a 14-6 record, still will make the trip to Los Angeles Monday for the second all-star game. Wynn started the first all-star game for the American Leaguers last month.

Wynn was standing in front of the bench which collapsed under the weight of other White Sox players. The 33-year-old right-hander was struck behind the left leg by the falling bench.

The Jacksonville Moose softball team holds down first place in the Mercedosa Sportsmen's Club League with eight victories in 10 starts. Bergman's of Pittsfield is second, a full game off the pace.

The Club hopes to stage a tournament at the conclusion of the league season August 26.

Redlegs Crush Chicago, 12-3

CINCINNATI (AP)—Pitcher: Bob Purkey, a 173 hitter, clubbed a grand slam home run and yielded only six hits as the Cincinnati Reds crushed the Chicago Cubs Saturday, 12-3.

Purkey's big homer came in a seven-run eighth inning. Later he had a double that missed being a homer by only a few feet.

He allowed only three hits after a shaky first inning and clipped in with fielding, too, by flagging down a line drive by Walt Moryn and turning it into a double play.

The victory boosted the Reds into a tie with St. Louis for sixth place in the National League.

Vada Pinson and Jerry Lynch also hit homers for the Reds.

Three of the Cub hits came in the first inning. They were singles by Tony Taylor, Ernie Banks and Moryn and produced the two Chicago runs. In the ninth, Moryn and Sam Taylor singled and Moryn scored on a double play.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS
Journal-Courier Sports Editor

Thursday's Glimpse Into The Past—10 Years Ago—brought back some pleasant memories of the Orlando, Fla., tenure when I broke into professional baseball as a shortstop in the summer of 1949. It was an experience I'll always remember but it was a career that I had no regrets for leaving a year later. It all began in 1948 when Jack Rositter was conducting a baseball school at Illinois College. Jack didn't know I still had a year of school left and he approached me about going into pro baseball. When he found out I was to be a senior, he dropped the subject but told me to keep it in mind.

—O—
We didn't enjoy the success Jacksonville High now enjoys in athletics and the last thing in the world I wanted to be was a coach. This is what soured me on college plus the fact that I never wanted to go through what Bob Kraushaar did in these days. Now, I wish I would have taken Kraushaar's advice and gone on to college. He never lost faith in his dreams of someday producing winners at JHS. When Charlie Due, Francis Bunch and I were invited to a tryout camp starting the first week of June at Streator, we decided to give it a whirl. Here is where we ran into a tall, awkward lad who had a good fast ball and curve. The left-hander was Dean Stone of Silvas, Ill., who was given a contract along with Due and I.

—O—
A month later, Stone and I were playing for the Orlando Senators. We roomed with two other players a stone's throw from Tinker Field, the winter home of the parent Washington Club. Our manager was George Myatt, now a coach with the Cubs, who was a tough cookie but a fair and understanding man. I never will forget my first time at bat. I arrived in Orlando around 5:30 p.m., grabbed a sandwich, which is the story of a minor leaguer, and got there just as batting practice ended. I suited up and threw a few. Then I rode the bench until the last of the ninth. We were losing and there were two outs. I had to pinch-hit or at least try. After the first pitch I realized I was in faster company than I had played with around home. I managed to foul off a couple and then I got my first slider. It was a called third strike. A heck of a way to break in, I thought. This was just the first of many nights that I was to see something different.

—O—
And don't think for a minute Class D pitchers don't throw as hard as they do in the majors. Most of them throw with the same speed only the top boys have control and savvy. For every walk our pitchers gave up, Myatt required 15-minute sprays. Lots of mornings we'd go to the park and wait a couple of hours for Stone to do his running. In Stone's first National League assignment Friday night, he held the Braves hitless for five innings but then the roof caved in on him in the sixth. The Redbird hurler always had trouble pitching from a stretch except when he had a whiz-bang year with Washington his first year in 1954. That was the year he got credit for the All-Star victory. When Gainesville came in, Stone always gave Jim Rivera, now of the White Sox, a rough time. Of course, Stone never knew that Rivera was listening. A partition divided our shower rooms and Dean was always bragging how he'd pitch to Rivera. The kidding was all in good fun until Jim came under the partition one night and the veteran got all over the rookie with verbal blasts. Stone had the last laugh, however, as he collared Rivera the following night on three strikeouts and a bouncer back to him.

—O—
Baseball was always fun for me except when I started getting paid for it and then it became work. My third game at Stanford almost became my first fine. We had a runner trapped off second and in the run-down instead of taking him back to second I chased the man toward third and tagged him out. I felt real good about the whole thing until Myatt took me over to a corner after the inning and told me another blunder such as that would cost me $25.00. I asked what I had done wrong? With fines facing you for doing a play wrong, you begin to get wise and ask the veterans about different play situations. One night I missed a signal, we changed signals every other game, and the opponents got a double play off a double steal. Instead of taking, I swung away and lined into a double play to take us out of an inning. Myatt never chewed us out in front of the other players but when I told him I thought I had gotten the hit signal, he said you're fined $15.00 and a day's rest, you aren't getting paid to think, I do the thinking for this club. Myatt also had a strict policy against swimming, he said it was the worst thing in the world for a ballplayer's muscles and he had a $50 fine just to show you how right he was. The biggest farce in the minors at least in the Florida State League at the time was this old business about the club footing the bill when the team is on the road. The trouble was, we were never on the road. We played a home and home series. Daytona Beach would come in for a game at home and then the next night we'd be at Daytona. We did get a dollar for meal money on the away games! Footing the rent and food bills at home all the time didn't leave much out of a flat $150 bucks. That was a month's pay.

—O—
The first couple of weeks is the hardest. I was sporting a $4.95 glove that had been used by a softball pitcher back home and needless to say this didn't get the job done. The Florida radio station that carried our games got wise to me and each night, they used to say, "Well, Spotts is out for his nightly air—er." When I look back on the incident, it's funny but it was embarrassing at the time. The first time I put on the Orlando uniform, I put on white wool socks under the baseball hose and rolled the pants three inches below my knees. Myatt said, "Hell, kid, this isn't a league for midgets, roll your pants higher, our umpires down here can't get down that low and as for those wool socks, get 'em off—this isn't a sock-hop, we're going to. Here—put on these sanitary hose." And for the longest time I thought they were sterilized.

—O—
The biggest battle that confronts a kid away from home is being homesick. Especially for the first time. One night a runner on first took off for second when the ball got past the catcher and I feinted the throw and he slid. There was no chance for a play and as the two-year veteran got up and dusted himself off he blasted, "The next time you do that, bushy, I'll tear the meat off your shins with these nails." This would have been one way to get home but I knew an injury wasn't worth it. He later explained, "Look—this is how we make our living, and if we injure ourselves needlessly on such a stunt as you pulled, then our paycheck is curtailed and we're sent home. I'm not afraid to slide if I have to but in pro ball you try to keep the other guy from injuring himself." This rule still applies.

—O—
I would have liked to played another season under Myatt in 1950 but he was named a coach for the White Sox and I signed a contract with Wellsville, N. Y. In the Pony League, I became disgusted with the game at Wellsville because of a booze-manager that had no tactics whatsoever. I asked to be sent to Orlando but instead I was told to report to Fulton, Ky., and here was Cal Eimer, one of the finest young managers in baseball today. I had a job with Cal but he knew I wasn't happy there. He wanted me to stay on but I couldn't see waiting for my break there and I headed home and beat the draft to the punch by joining the Air Force.

—O—
It wasn't a very glamorous career but it was an experience that makes you appreciate a fine home where you are content among your

McCovey's Hitting Powers Giants To 9-5 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rookie Willie McCovey's hitting and

Dusty Rhodes' 3-run pinch double in the seventh inning powered the

San Francisco Giants to a 9-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

The Giants had to come from behind to win and hold their half-game National League lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers and Milwaukee Braves.

A five-minute melee erupted in the second inning when Daryl

Spencer slid into third base and nicked Don Hoak's bare hand.

Umpire Tony Venzon threw up his arms as Hoak charged. Spencer and wrestled the Pirate third sacker as players from both teams rushed to the hot corner. A confused fracas followed but no one was hurt and no one was banished.

McCovey, bashing two doubles and a single in his third game with the Giants, started the five-run seventh inning outburst with a single off losing pitcher Benny

Daniels, the third Pirate hurler.

After Orlando Cepeda smacked his third single, Elroy Face, the Pirates' ace reliever, came on.

Willie Kirkland singled, scoring

McCovey. Ed "soud" walked loading the bases.

With two out, Rhodes came up to hit for pitcher Bud Beyer. He lined his double into left field, clearing the bases. Jackie Brandt

Jerry's Putt Good Enough For 1-Stroke Lead In Final Round

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Tiny Jerry Barber held a tremendous uphill putt of 35 feet on the 18th green Saturday to preserve his lead in the PGA championship against onrushing Doug Sanders.

After 54 holes, Barber, from Los Angeles, was only a stroke in front with a total of 205 — five under par for the route on the 6,850-yard Minneapolis Golf Club course.

Barber followed his fine 65 of Friday with a third round of 71, one over the standard figures of 35-35-70.

Sanders had caught him at the 16th hole, but Barber had the one good shot left to thrill a gallery of 12,000 surrounding the home green.

Sanders picked up three strokes with a 68, his second sub-par round in succession. Two strokes back of the lead was Mike Souchak, who also had a 71.

These three were the ones to beat, as the richest and best-attended PGA championship of all time headed into its final round Sunday.

Dow Finsterwald, the defending champion, and Cary Middlecott were five strokes back at 210.

Barber, after a dazzling 65 Friday — the lowest score of the tournament — started Saturday's round with a two stroke lead over Souchak and four over Sanders. He lost it all and then edged out in front again with the final effort on the home green.

The PGA field was cut for the second time after Saturday's round, leaving 64 players with scores of 221 or better to play the final round. If they all finish the round — and it's worth at least $200 to do that — the prize money will total $51,375. That makes the PGA second only to the Masters in value.

Four Illinoisans were among third round scorers: Don Fairfield of Casey, 218; Bill Ogden of Glenview, 218; George Bayer of Lemont, 222, and Dick Hart of Hinsdale, 220.

Director Of Public Works Promises Investigation Of 'Collision Corner'

E. A. Rosenstone, Director of Public Works for Illinois this week assured Rep. Hugh Green that the state is making an investigation of the hazardous "collision corner" at the intersection of S. Diamond and West Morton.

Fourteen accidents have occurred at the corner since the first of the year. After a request from Chief of Police Runkel that something be done to correct the situation the State highway department installed stronger light bulbs in the stop lights. The accidents have continued.

Many citizens have written the Journal Courier suggesting improvements in the dangerous situation following an editorial in this paper several weeks ago.

On Monday Rep. Hugh Green of Jacksonville wrote the Director of Public Works as follows:

Director E. A. Rosenstone
Department of Public Works and Buildings

Room 602 State Office Building
Springfield, Illinois

Dear Ed:

The stop lights located on U. S. 36 and 54 where said routes intersect South Diamond Street, Jacksonville, do not seem to prevent collisions, of which there have been quite a number. Several people who have approached the road from Diamond Street, going North or South, have told me that, although they had the green light, nevertheless, they were struck by an automobile on through traffic on the highway.

In view of the foregoing it would be very deeply appreciated, by all of us, if a speedy investigation of this matter could be made and the situation remedied.

Please be advised that it is my desire to cooperate fully with your office at all times.

Sincerely,
Hugh Green

The reply to Rep. Green was as follows:

Honorable Hugh Green
State Representative
Jacksonville, Illinois

Dear Representative Green:

I have your letter of July 27th relative to the situation where U.S. 36 and 54 intersect South Diamond Street in Jacksonville.

I am having an investigation made of this matter and as soon as I receive a report I will write you again.

Yours very truly,
E. A. Rosenstone
Director

When the 1959 Morgan County Agricultural Junior Fair opens Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, five days of fun and excitement will unfold for spectators and exhibitors alike at the west side fairgrounds. A society horse show will be featured in front of the grandstand each evening with the championship showing scheduled for Friday night. Saturday night's card will be an all-western show and should draw a large number of local entries.

In addition, parking on the north side of Lafayette Avenue, across from the fairgrounds, will be available for those who do not wish to drive their autos onto the grounds.

The West State gate will be reserved for pedestrian traffic only. Merchants will have a special parking space free of charge in the infield and will enter a special gate from West Lafayette. Reserved parking in the southwest portion of the infield will be available for one dollar per car and is good throughout the five-day run. A special sticker is on sale at the fair office.

Part 1: Lively Notes
A composer added the last notes to his sheet music then whistled the air as he turned to a fresh page.

"Now come two eighth notes," he mused. Quickly, two lively eighth notes scampered under his elbow and up to his hand. Then came an interruption; the musician had to go away.

Confused, the small black notes stood looking at tall Treble Clef.

"We do not know where we belong," they explained. "On a line or in a space. Do you mind if we play on your spirals?"

back and forth they coasted across the long staff lines. "Look at this," Sung Lo shouted and zigzagged through the five spaces up and down, while Hi Fi leaped an octave high to practice a trill.

"You might fall," Sung Lo called, "but I won't!" ping! He tripped and caught one foot in his flag wrapped across two lines.

"Have fun," it answered. "Only don't go far. He will need you when he returns."

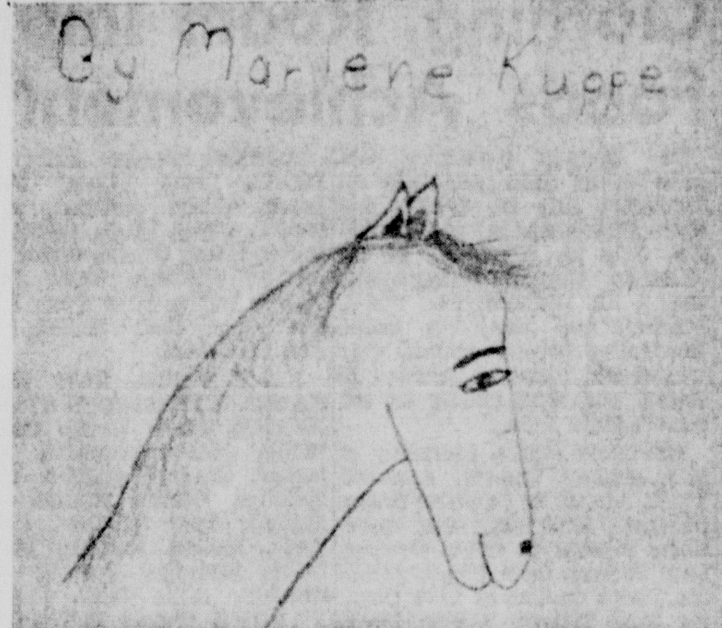

"Let's climb to the top," Hi Fi said. So, waving their little black flags, the two wiggled and twisted as far up as they could go then

"Let go! Let go! Ouch!" squeaked Treble Clef, his great spiral pinched and dented in two places as Sung Lo twisted and jerked, shouting "Come here, come here. Hi Fi, I can't get loose!" Hi Fi dropped straight to the tangle to push and pull until his friend fell out.

"My foot hurts," Sung Lo whimpered. "Look, the flag is gone from my stem, its gone! What shall I do?"

Chapter 18: Hard Trip West

The hot sun, now high in the heavens, beat unmercifully on the bare heads of the two children as they jogged along the broad prairie. It had been several hours now since they had ventured forth on John Boley's horse, Lone Star.

By keeping his eye on the sun, Simon had traveled due west following the creek as best he could. His head ached from the sun, and his fingers cramped painfully from holding the horse's reins so tightly. Heavy beads of perspiration stood out on his face, and ran down his neck in scalding little rivulets.

When both children had drunk their fill, Simon turned as he thoughtfully surveyed the surrounding countryside.

"I wonder how far we've come," he said to the little girl beside him.

"I don't know," Emmy Lou answered. "But I do know, I'm not used to riding a horse," she added laughing, as she vigorously rubbed her tender backsides.

Both children, glad for this moment of rest, sat down in the shade of the willows.

"What Can They Eat?"

"If we only had something to eat," Simon remarked, as he sat watching the gurgling water of the creek, as it rushed on its way. "Maybe there's some fish in this creek."

"Oh, Simon!" said Emmy Lou brightening. "Do you think we could catch one? I'm so hungry too!"

"I don't know," he replied uncertainly, "but we could try. I could clean it with my pocket knife, and maybe I could start a fire with this little magnifying glass I have here in my pocket," he added, as he drew forth the little glass which his father had given him seven years ago.

Simon stood up as he began to make plans for catching a fish.

Let's Go Birding

Greatest Show on Earth
By Emma Mae Leonhard

This time our story doesn't concern birds in our area; instead, it is about an experience similar to which any bird lover may have. Perhaps you have heard of the Kirtland's Warbler, a little gray bird with a lemon-yellow breast and black spots on its sides.

There is only one place in the world, according to ornithologists, where it nests; that is the area near Grayling, Michigan. Even then, it is not too easy to find this warbler, for it is particular about the exact spot where it will nest.

It requires Jack Pines from five to eighteen feet high; when the pines exceed that height, the birds leave them. The Kirtland's Warbler builds its nest deep in the growth on the ground under the pine and covers it so carefully that it is difficult to find.

To personalize this article, I decided to add the Kirtland's Warbler to my life list of birds. I had not the slightest dream of finding its nest; all that I planned to do was to see the bird and to hear its unique song. After taking a sister into taking the trip to the spot, I made my plans carefully.

I corresponded with the Michigan Department of Conservation at Lansing and learned where the Kirtland's Warbler had been heard singing in May. I received a map of the place where six birds had been heard.

We drove to Houghton Lake and secured further directions from the Wildlife and Conservation headquarters there. They reported four Kirtland's Warblers in one spot and one in another, and very cautiously drew on a conservation map the twisting route through the woods, by-passing several logging roads.

Lost In Maze Of Woods

As you can guess, we got lost in this maze of woods. Had it not been for my car compass, we could have circled the place all day. Knowing that I had missed the "diagonal road" which followed an old lumbering railroad bed, I continued in the right general direction and luckily came out on a farm house where I found an intelligent native who gave me explicit directions how to find the road.

We succeeded. Proceeding along this narrow sand and gravel road through the Jack Pine woods of just the right size and fording shallow pools in the road, I drove on slowly, listening for a song different from what I had ever heard. I had a vague idea about the bird's notes, for I had read all that I could find. Its song would sound something like that of the Waterthrush and the House Wren combined, with an abrupt different ending. Its clear song could carry at least a quarter of a mile.

All of a sudden I caught the song. Stopping the car in the road, I started out with my binoculars to find the Kirtland's Warbler. After I had gone some distance, still following that siren song, I heard a car approaching. What fools except me and my reluctant sister would be driving this very narrow out-of-the-way road at this time of morning, I wondered.

Realizing that I had blocked the road, I hurried back, creating a winning apology on the way. Before I could use it, the driver asked, "Did you find it?" Intuitively I knew that he referred to my coveted bird.

"I have heard it," I replied. "But I haven't found it yet."

Knows Where Nest Is

"I don't know its song, but do you have a camera," he offered as he and his companion began to unload their camera equipment.

"We were shown its nest last night," he continued. "Come along if you would like."

My sister took her camera out. We followed the two professional birders with their three cameras. Soon they stopped under a Jack Pine that looked like all of the other pines.

One of the men pointed at a grassy spot under the tree. All of us advanced carefully toward it. There securely camouflaged sat the Kirtland's Warbler. There she remained during the battery of picture taking.

At last she slid out of her nest and sat near it. Six tiny two-day-old baby Kirtlands nestled in the nest cup. Another battery of picture snapping went on.

She soon slipped back on the nest as if to say, "The show is over." However, it was not forgotten, the only such show in the whole world.

And during the entire performance the male bird sang its unique song nearby. Nothing was missing.

SUGAR MAPLE
By RIP BARNSDALL

In pioneer days maple sugar or maple syrup was often the only sweetening the early settlers had. The leaves of the sugar maple have five lobes that point out.

The other famous maple, the Red Maple, has but three lobes that point forward, making the leaf somewhat narrower.

The Sugar Maple is renowned for its sap when boiled down and made into syrup or sugar.

GARDENS

By Mary Pence Claywell

A garden's such a friendly place. I love to watch it grow. And walk between the threads of green.

When soft warm breezes blow: It seems sometimes when nodding. In sweet agreement there. The little plants are trying. To thank me for their care.

The roses and the other flowers Join in their praises too. And flaunt their lovely colors. All glistering with dew!

And once . . . I'd longer to see it. It almost made me start . . . I glimpsed a lily's petals Unfold . . . around its heart.

Its fingers white unclasp . . . Like a white-robed maiden there. Revealing all her young soul's love. In an attitude . . . of prayer!

And always, in a garden, All fresh with sparkling dew I'm conscious in its beauty. Of . . . an unseen Presence too.

And quietly as I tend it With patience and with care, Although I hear no footsteps . . . I know . . . God's walking there!

ROCKETS AND SPACE

Four Moon Radio Relays
By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

Two of the four most satisfactory radio relays for the moon are in line with the earth and moon; one in front of the moon and the other behind the moon, and the other two are the Trojan points in the moon's orbit.

The two "in line" satellites would always stay that way because of the combined pull of the earth and moon. The one in front of the moon would be slowed up by the moon's gravity so that it will go around the earth at the same speed as the moon.

If it weren't for the moon's gravity this satellite would travel faster than the moon.

The satellite on the opposite side of the moon has to travel as fast as the moon to keep that body's gravity from pulling it out of its orbit.

The two Trojan points are on both sides of the moon, (in its orbit), as far away from it as it is from earth. At either of these two points a satellite can stay put without being pulled out of its orbit by either the moon, earth or both.

To put a satellite in orbit at the line point in front of the moon, the men at the moon base would build a rocket out of the left-over parts from the one-way rockets that brought the materials to build Moonville. This rocket, of course, would be smaller than the one-way rockets it was built from.

When the rocket is completed it will be loaded on a trailer and pulled to 0° Latitude and 0° Longitude in the southern part of Sinus Media (the exact center of the visible side of the moon). A rocket from earth will meet the expedition there and fuel the satellite rocket.

Straight Up Launching
After the satellite is fueled it will be launched straight up to the in-line point 35,000 miles from the moon. When the satellite-to-be reached the in-line point it would fire retro-rockets until it had cancelled all the speed left from its launching, (which wouldn't be very much.)

Since the rocket would already be traveling around the earth at the same rate as the moon, having been launched from there, it would automatically be in orbit when its motors shut off.

A similar procedure would be used to establish a satellite at the in-line point on the other side of the moon. Only this time the satellite would be launched from 0° Latitude and 180° Longitude — half way around the moon from the other in-line satellite.

A retro-rocket would not be needed for the in-line-satellite on the opposite side of the moon. All that would be needed is enough fuel to send the rocket straight up to 35,000 miles. The retro-rocket is used on the satellite launched from the visible side of the moon to keep the rocket from falling down to earth.

Radio Relay Service
These two in-line satellites would each provide radio relay service and TV coverage for the whole moon. Since the moon always keeps the same side toward earth its satellites would always stay in the same place in the sky for a man on the moon. This would make them ideal for radio relay.

If the in-line satellites were manned it would be cheaper to supply them from the moon than from earth. To do this a fleet of small supply rockets could be built from the remaining left-over parts of the one-way rockets.

To send messages from one side of the moon to the other a Trojan satellite would be set at one of the moon's Trojan points.

Have you noticed how figures seem to go to pieces when summer dresses are worn? Many toss aside needed girdles as a cooling measure. Others tend to slump as the temperature rises. Relaxing summer clothes may hide some figure faults but not many. Keep your posture in check, with or without artificial means.

Farm Family Group Tours State Hospital

On Monday morning, July 27, forty-five people were escorted on a tour of Jacksonville State Hospital.

Eleven years ago the G.M. & O. Railroad chose an outstanding farm family from each county in Illinois and Missouri through which their railroad ran. These families were given a free trip to New Orleans, La.

On that trip the group came to know one another and to like one another so well that once a year, ever since that time, they have had a reunion.

This year that reunion was held in Jacksonville, with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Thomason, four miles northwest, acting as host and hostess.

These outstanding farm families visited Jacksonville State Hospital and toured the occupational therapy center, the gymnasium, the clothing shop, industrial building, bakery, laundry and the main kitchen.

Mr. Edward Killiam, industrial therapist at the hospital, told the group something of the operation of a hospital such as the institution and of the care and treatment which is given to the mental patients.

These tours, offered to the interested visitor, prove to be invaluable to the hospital because they build good will and understanding with the public.

Now South did a little over-bidding. He decided that if North held six spades to the ace, the worst that could happen at six spades would be a club finesse for the contract, so South went right into the Blackwood routine and contracted for the spade slam, once North showed one ace.
At this point North decided to do something with his twelve points. He could not bid seven, as South was obviously showing that there was a missing ace, but North could see that six trump ought to be a spread.
Since the game was match point duplicate, North wanted those ten extra points.
Also, North was not proud of his spade suit and there just might be a spade trick against the hand.
North was right on both counts. Six no-trump wrapped up since South had five clubs, two diamonds, one heart and four spades in top cards, but West's five spades to the ten would have beaten the spade slam.

TODAY'S 2-MINUTE MYSTERY
THE CASE OF THE MYSTERIOUS STRANGER
By Donald J. Sobol
Ron Williams, America's best built man, lay on the beach, staring into the sun. Driven neatly into his publicized 50-inch chest ("53 inches expanded") was a slender black knife.
Inspector Winters and Dr. Haledjian peered down at the incredibly muscled nude body, which was tanned so expertly that no area of flesh was darker than another. Only the white swath where he had worn bikini swim trunks broke the extra-ordinary evenness of the man.
"Williams and his pal, Tom 'Best Legs' Enrie, were sunbathing when it happened," said the inspector. "Enrie has placed second to Williams in the last five muscular contests, and maybe that's your motive. Now Enrie is Body Beautiful Number One. His story of a mysterious killer is so far-fetched, however, that it just might be true."
Enrie, who was covered by a borrowed raincoat, repeated the details of the murder for Haledjian.
"The Mr. Hemisphere title is coming up next week, and Ron and I have been coming to the beach to get bronzed up. You get extra points for little things like skin and grooming."
The beach was deserted today. After we'd been here about 15 minutes, a fellow with a knife in his right hand appeared. He waved it at us while he went through our stuff. I guess he was pretty sore we didn't have much money."
"Then he made us strip," went on Enrie. "Next he told Ron to take off his wrist watch and toss it over. As Ron tossed the watch, he charged, but the fellow was too quick. He stabbed Ron, scooped up the watch and taking our clothes, dashed toward the road."
"You're correct, Inspector," said Haledjian. "A far-fetched story, and one a person as vain and jealous as Enrie might believe impossible to disprove."

In Hollywood
By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Crime is paying nicely on the Warner lot these days, with the third brace of private eyes going to work in the 50th state.
Efrem Zimbalist Jr. and Roger Smith have had a successful season cleaning up the local crooks in "77 Sunset Strip" with the aid of their Kookie pal, Edd Byrnes. Richard Long and Andrew Dugan have gone to work on New Orleans baddies with "Bourbon Street Beat."
Now a couple of young actors named Tony Elsley and Bob Conrad are waylaying them in the isles for "Hawaiian Eye." It starts on the ABC network Oct. 7. I dropped out to watch the series on its maiden voyage.
Elsley is a suave, slim Philadelphian of 34 years. University of Miami grad, always vowed to be an actor, worked in stock companies before joining "Mister Roberts" road company. He did Broadway shows, TV before coming to Hollywood, has son and daughter.
Bob Conrad is a 24-year-old Chicagoan with a haunting resemblance to the late Jimmy Dean. Real name: Conrad Robert Falk. He studied drama at Northwestern University, was urged by actor Nick Adams to try Hollywood. He is married, has two daughters.
"This is same set-up as '77 Sunset Strip,'" Bob explained. "Tony and I will trade off on the cases, though we both appear in each show."
"We shot a couple of weeks of background shots in Hawaii," Tony added. "Nothing specific—just a lot of atmosphere shots that might be needed. We must have gone in and out of every doorway in Honolulu."
The major part of the shows are shot on one big stage, which includes a replica of Henry Kaiser's Hawaiian Village. The boys have their headquarters in the village, and Kaiser will reap the same publicity benefits as Dino's in "77."
I always like to talk to the enthusiastic starters in these series and then compare with attitude a year hence.
"If anything should happen to the series, I have my own form of job security," Tony said. "It's this mustache. I can always go into the executive branch."
Morgan Residents Purchase $69,581 In E And H Bonds
Morgan county residents purchased a total of $69,581 in series E and H United States savings bonds in the month of June, according to Arthur J. French and Frank Osborne Elliott of Jacksonville, general county co-chairmen of the Savings Bond Committee.
In the state of Illinois both series totaled $26,864,757, according to T. Merle Paul, State Director of the U.S. Savings Bonds Division. Sales in the state were down 24.5% from last June. National sales for the month were $23,000,000, with Illinois accounting for 8.0% of this amount.
In the first six months of this year 42.1% of the state's annual quota of $465,000,000 has been reached.

F. J. Andrews Lumber Company Presents NEW HOME SERIES NO. 9

Inspection of this new home located at No. 5 Westgate Circle, Westgate Addition, is invited by the Builder, R. M. McAlister.
Well-designed, with an efficient, spacious interior, decorated in the best of taste, this home embodies numerous living features that modern families value most highly today. An attractive exterior of Red Brick Veneer combined with a facing of Bedford Stone on the entrance terrace, complements the interior living scheme. A generous roof overhang extends over the terrace to form a sheltered entry, and is repeated for the integrated garage to enhance the long, low pitch roof line. For added interest, the wide terrace is outlined by an ornamental iron railing.
A door from the terrace opens into a welcoming foyer, where there is a convenient coat closet to take care of outdoor clothing before entering the living areas. On the left, a decorative divider separates the foyer from the living room, built-in with the partition, and facing the living room are open shelves for books, plants, bric-a-brac, etc.
The living room is graced by a triple window that looks out on the entrance terrace, presenting a delightful aspect from inside as well as from the street. Ample space is provided for family activities or gracious entertaining, excellent wall space makes effective furniture arrangements possible. Adjoining the living room is an inviting attractive dining room with two windows overlooking the back lawn. The living and dining areas are decorated harmoniously to extend the function of both rooms, woodwork and walls are painted soft beige, the cove mould and ceilings are Gardenia White. To add to the decor, there is an especially attractive china built-in. This china cabinet has glass sliding doors at the upper portion, a handy shelf in the middle, and storage space below enclosed by Birch doors. There is a door for easy access to the full basement, which is equipped with a water heater and a heating unit that is adaptable to air-conditioning, there is also a door opening to the rear patio, as well as a door to the kitchen.
Part of the spacious kitchen is designed for a work area, a convenient L-arrangement incorporates a twin sink with garbage disposer unit under the casement window, a surface-top range, ventilating hood, and a built-in wall oven, all of satin finish stainless steel. Another part of the kitchen has been designed for a coffee room, windows on two sides create a sunny atmosphere. Here, design and decoration unite to make an inviting room for family meals. These centers are tied together with the unifying color of natural Birch cabinets, Formica counter-tops of a Wheat shade, and a Vinyl Asbestos floor in a Beige tone. The walls and ceiling are painted Terrace Green, contrast is provided by the use of patterned wall paper on two walls. An entrance from the kitchen opens into a double garage, designed for the cars of today.
Shuttered doors at the end of the living room open into a hall, providing seclusion for the three bedrooms and the bathroom. The storage problem for these areas is solved by a towel closet and a linen closet in this hall. The bathroom is conveniently located, features a combination tub and shower, a full-width mirror above the built-in vanity, the vanity surface is of Petal Pink Formica. A comfortable vanity bench is a thoughtful addition. Gull-Grey Ceramic Tile is utilized for the lower half of the walls and is accented by painted walls of Petal Pink on the upper portion. The floor is of Gull-Grey Tile.
The three bedrooms are planned for comfort, all have well-balanced window treatment. Attractive floor-to-ceiling, folding louvered doors are used to close the generous closets. Built-in drawers and compartments for shoes, hats, etc. are featured in each of the closets. The color scheme for the bedrooms has been carefully chosen for complete harmony. The bedroom on the front has painted walls, ceiling, woodwork and cove mould of Primrose Yellow. A triple closet of extra size is a part of the Master bedroom, a shade of light Jade Green contributes to the charm of this room. The third bedroom is a versatile room, since it opens so conveniently adjacent to the dining room, it may double as a den. A recessed vanity is built in (it could be used as a desk), and is flanked by floor-to-ceiling closets, using shutter doors for a charming effect. A delicate shade of Apple Blossom Pink is used for the decor.
Ornamental Brass hardware lends an elegant note throughout the house. Red Oak floors are used in the hall and the bedrooms.
Designed for delightful living, this is a home that features a future of happy home making, from housewarming day forward.

Victorian Look For The School Set Darkened Colors For The Classroom

The younger set sets out for school this fall with a "best-dressed" look. Even small fashions have a look of luxury this year. Jumper-dress (left), in silky textured cotton buttons down one side, is detailed with a tier of tiny pockets on the other. The separate white blouse is attached to a nylon tulle underskirt. Another silky cotton (center) has collar and bodice decorated with stream of plaid scallops. Full shirred skirt floats over attached nylon tulle underskirt. Navy blue sailor dress (right) in cotton broadcloth has skirt of double kick pleats which open to show embroidered braid insert. White sailor collar is also outlined in the braid. All three dresses shown here are by Celest.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The first day of school is always an exciting one, partly because of classes and partly because of the promise of parties, museum trips, ballet lessons and other fun that autumn brings.

A girl likes to look her best, naturally. That's easy to do this fall, in little dresses that carry a demure Victorian air. School dresses and party dresses alike have a touch of the quaintly beautiful.

A fine example of one of these enchanting period pieces is a mulled-wine and black, checked cotton with a cuff in white collar and long sleeves ruffled in washable black velvet. (For these are period pieces with a 1959 practicality—not merely whimsy.)

Dresses are belted once more or have waistslines defined by banding or narrow cuff effects. Skirts are open-pleated, shirred, or triple-pleated with braid detailing. They're done over nylon tulle petticoats.

For really fancy parties, there are velveteens in Venetian colors; gondola red, princess blue, grotto green, rich brown and jet black. These have frothy collars of imported point Venice lace or frills of organdy and Val lace. And the Victorian influence appears again in a deep red called Victorian red.

For school, there are more darkened colors: mulled wine, Windsor blue, Sherwood green.

Pub Keeper Hires Rickshaw To Hush Fuss About Noise

LONDON (AP)—The keeper of the good pub Grenadier hired a Chinese rickshaw today in a valiant effort to hush neighborhood complaints about the noise of his customers' automobiles.

The pubman is Geoffrey Bernard, 41. Starting tonight, he's going to use the rickshaw to haul customers to and from his pub.

"Not all the way, mind you," said Bernard, "but 130 yards of the way."

This unique situation could happen in few places but England—the land of compromise. What led to it was this:

The Grenadier is located in Wilton Row, Belgrave, a London residential section housing embassies, well paid actors and producers, composers, financiers and publishers.

Some of the pub's neighbors—unidentified by the local cops—complained of noise made by cars of pub customers. The cops took the pubman to court and threatened to close down his oasis.

A literal-minded law officer asked: "Why can't the customers walk?"

Lawyer J. C. Llewellyn (for the pub) had an answer to that: "Sometimes ladies are high-heeled shoes have difficulty in getting over the cobbles. Would a

Mid-Victorian Air For Autumn Brides

Wedding dresses for autumn take their cue from mid-Victorian brides. This gown might have come from the pages of Godey's Lady's Book. It's cut with long pointed bodice, pointed sleeves and deep bertha collar. Lace is applied on collar and center front panel of skirt. Fabric is white bengara and acetate taffeta. —By Gaile Dugas, NEA Women's Editor.

Poles Wonder What Motive Underlies Nixon's Polish Trip

Editor's note—This appraisal of Vice President Nixon's imminent trip to Poland comes from a correspondent who has spent most of the last year in that country.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

VIENNA (AP) — The Polish Communist chief, Wladyslaw Gomulka, today has every reason for a warm smile.

The leader of a country sometimes at odds with both its Soviet allies and the west is now receiving a sort of seal of approval from both sides.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev recently finished a visit to Poland. He made it plain to both Stalinists and the liberal internal opposition that Gomulka is his chosen and trusted lieutenant in Poland. Former bitterness between the two was forgotten.

This weekend Vice President Richard M. Nixon is going to Poland. Intentionally or not, his visit cannot fail to convince a lot of the Polish public and the peoples of Communist nations that Gomulka is also Washington's favored boy.

"We are delighted he is coming, but what is his motive?" was the reaction of some Poles this reporter talked to. They recalled it has long been U.S. policy not to indicate approval of a government in any manner which might discourage its people from hoping for eventual peaceful evolution from

by E. W. BROWN
We hear there are some pretty interesting experiments going on with a recording gadget that is designed to teach you while you sleep. This is a device that should be handy for students who can't keep awake in class. While you are in the arms of Morpheus (a classical allusion), a small loudspeaker on your pillow packs your subconscious mind with foreign languages, history or five ways to fricassee a penguin. The whole process is as painless as a summer breeze. One wife used the machine to give her sleeping husband pep talks on salads, and in three weeks he was clamoring for rabbit food. This could lead to a whole new husband training program. If it really takes hold we'll be the best trained and sleepest people in the world. Students in an eastern college who get less than 75% in their studies are not allowed to drive their cars on campus. They either have to use their heads... or their feet. We invite you to use our service department. The mechanics in our service department know your car from long experience and thorough mechanical training. And we have all the equipment and special tools needed for any minor or major repair job. All our repair work is guaranteed. E. W. Brown, 406 South Main, Phone 5-4335.

HILL SMOKE

BY L. P. HOLMES

© 1959 by L. P. Holmes. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THIS STORY: Grady Haskell had been waiting on the street of Resurrection by cowhands who beat him to his knees with blows and kicks.

VI
It was a doomed and losing fight. Both the numbness and the blackness deepened until, shortly, despite his best efforts, he lay prone in the dust and knew nothing more.

They milled about his motionless figure. One leaned over him, boot drawn back for another kick. Before it could be delivered, harsh warning came in from the outer dark.

"Leave him be—all of you! Get away from him! You hear me—get away from him! Else I turn loose these loads of buckshot!"

Startled, they scattered and gave back. Someone made heavy, panting demand.

"Who's talkin'?"
"I am—Joe Peele. And before you start laughin', think of this. I'm stone sober, and lookin' at you over the old sawed-off Greener I packed when I rode stage express. Get away from that man!"

Thwarted anger flared back. "You turn that gun loose, Peele—and you'll be dead before mornin'!"

"I turn this gun loose, you'll be dead before that. Move along—all of you!"

Someone said: "Might as well. No point in workin' over him any more; he ain't feelin' nothin'."

Here was something they didn't care to gamble with, buckshot lashing at them through the night. So they drifted off, licking their wounds. Presently sounded the mutter of departing hoofs, and then the deeper rumble as they crossed the bridge.

It seemed to Grady Haskell along to his shanty, where you can rest and clean up a little."

He pulled away and angled for the hotel.

He reached the hotel steps, stumbled against them and fell to his hands and knees, the jolt of landing seeming about to split his throbbing head wide open. For a little time he stayed so, eyes squeezed tight against the pain. Then he climbed doggedly back to his feet and went on into the hotel.

Katherine Levening stood before him. Evidently about to leave for the night, she was buttoned to the ears in a fleecy-lined coat, and was carrying a pair of buckskin gloves.

"They didn't quite make it good, Katie Levening. No, they didn't quite—kill me. But they sure tried! Which makes you out a pretty rough girl, Katie. Next time you want a man killed—order it done, clean. Not beat to death. Girl like you should never have a man—that bad. Even if he did kiss you. Thought better of you, than that, Katie. Really did. Had you figured—different. My mistake, Katie—my mistake!"

Again he passed a hand across his face, as though trying to brush something away. Then he shuffled unsteadily across the lobby.

Katherine Levening watched this bloodstained, wickedly beaten man reel and weave as he worked a slow, painful way up the stairs. And as the full meaning behind his words struck home, she ran to the foot of the stairs and sent her protest crying up after him.

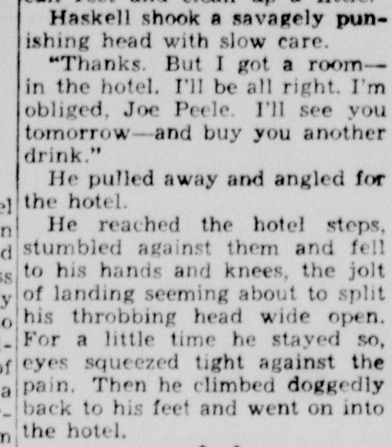

"I never did! What you say is not true. I set no one after you. I tell you I never did!"

He paid her no further attention, oblivious now to everything but the necessity of reaching his room. There he moved on through the darkness to fall into the bed.
